90 YEARS OF CONSERVATION SUCCESS

From the Jazz Age to World War II

The Roaring 20s had been prosperous for the country – and for the fledgling Izaak Walton League. But as the nation was battered first by the Great Depression and then by World War II, the League fought to ensure the country's natural resources did not become casualties of these conflicts.

BY DAWN MERRITT